

Stanford University Football

Mentor: Sebastian Zorn

Approximate Start Date: July 2022
8-month program duration

The SNIP will assist the Director of Football Nutrition in directly supporting the Stanford Football team with nutrition education, counseling, and fueling. This position provides valuable field experience with a high education capacity football team that is intrinsically motivated to optimize their nutrition. This position gives the opportunity to take ownership of operational management skills and travel to each away game.

We are looking to bring in a highly motivated self-starting RD into this role. Weekly formal nutrition education and professional development is provided as part of the experience. This position will work daily with the Director of Football Nutrition in executing all the tasks and services for the 2022 Football season and Winter off-season.

Compensation

1. Gatorade will provide a monthly stipend of $2000 through CPSDA for 8 months.
2. Understanding how expensive it is to live in the Bay Area, Stanford will supplement the SNIP stipend with hourly pay totaling at least $1400 a month.

Timing

- This position would ideally run from July 2022 through February 2023, 8 months. Exact start and end date are dependent on the applicants.

Responsibilities

- Assist Director of Football Nutrition with active and passive education development, fueling operations, and counseling
- Manage Stanford Football Fueling Station
- Work all practices and games, providing nutrition support as assigned
- Communicate consistently with performance team members regarding care of athletes
- Other duties as assigned by Director of Football Nutrition depending on need and experience
