

University of Nevada Las Vegas

Mentor: Nicole Kiley

Approximate Start Date: October 1, 2022
8-month program duration

The University of Nevada Las Vegas (UNLV) Performance Nutrition Department is a first-time Sports Nutrition Immersion Program (SNIP) host applicant and is thrilled to be your potential experiential site! We seek to diversify the pool of SNIP locations, as we are located in the entertainment capital of the world and are one of the fastest growing sports cities in the country. We are on the forefront of expanding student-athlete holistic services within the Mountain West Conference. In just four years, we have created and expanded our performance nutrition, sport psychology and data science departments. We have launched our first student-athlete only Training Table, which is uniquely serviced by our award winning College of Hospitality. At UNLV you will witness the creativity and grit used to do a lot with a little and learn how we are building the infrastructure of a proper sport performance environment from the ground up. Under the mentorship of myself (Nicole Kiley), Director of Performance Nutrition, you will have the opportunity to take ownership of team(s) nutrition, collaborate with service-minded interdisciplinary members, and obtain a balanced exposure between food service, clinical and sport nutrition. TOGETHER we will enhance your ability to identify a need and prioritize an impact. You will learn to advocate for both your student-athletes and yourself. You will leave UNLV with the confidence and competence you need to start your full-time professional sport dietitian career. We value your consideration to host you as our first SNIP fellow!
